Sharyn Casey is a broadcasting powerhouse. With so many strings to her bow, this multi-talented broadcaster, content creator, writer and mother has already made a strong imprint upon the industry. The bubbly Sharyn knew what she wanted to do since she was seven years old and living in Timaru. She entered the industry as early as she could; studying broadcasting at the NZ Radio Training School in Wellington.

Sharyn has over 15 years' experience on air in radio starting her career at More FM Wairarapa, before working her way up the ranks at The Edge radio station doing the night show, day show, news reading, music director role and is currently in her eighth year hosting The Edge Afternoon show (which won three radio awards in 2018), with co-host Jayden King.

Sharyn is also co-host of high-rating podcast "The Trainee Sexologist" (available on rova), the weekly chronicals of her friend Morgan Penn's journey to become a sex therapist. The second series of the hugely popular format is set to launch in 2021.

In the TV presenting realm, Sharyn is known for her outstanding job presenting three seasons of Dancing With The Stars NZ; plus NZ's very first season of The Masked Singer; she's skilled at live TV, reading auto-cue, interviewing people on the fly and has finally mastered the art of not falling down in her heels (her words not ours). With other shows such as Four Live, Xtra Factor (The after-show of X Factor), various duties on screen for the VNZMA's including the red carpet show for seven years, backstage coverage and anchoring the main show, Sharyn's been roped into comedy sketches with Jono and Ben and even covered live boxing events for TV3. Sharyn is keen to give anything a try - unless it involves her cooking something.

Hard work and dedication saw Sharyn wanting to add more strings to her bow, she's been MCing events for over 15 years with a great reputation for being organised, keeping events on time and entertaining a crowd, While also trying her hand at writing with several published pieces on new sites and magazines on an array of topics from parenting, mental health, music, celeb gossip and advice.

Motherhood came knocking for Sharyn in 2018, as she and her husband, The Rock's Bryce Casey, welcomed son Tyson into the world. They have bravely shared their turbulent journey through miscarriage.

All this media attention, along with her own flair for creating content, quickly drew her a large and engaged following across her social pages.

For some people, this would be enough to span an entire career. But watch this space, Sharyn's just getting started.
